The Carmel Pine Cone

One of the most enchanting and peaceful sights in the Carmel area is this view of the Carmelite Monastery south of Carmel on Highway 1. The Monastery was founded in Carmel in 1925 in a small house and was moved to its present location by the donation of land and the present building by the Francis Sullivan family of Carmel in 1941.

Mayor Grant Speaks At Memorial Day Services

At 11:00 a.m. Memorial Day the bell at the World War I archway monument on Ocean Avenue and the Church bells of Carmel rang in memorial to our boys who lost their lives fighting for peace.

It is hoped by many Carmelites that these bells can ring daily to remind us of the men who are now fighting in Vietnam and our desire to have peace in that war.

The Mayor of Carmel, Steve Grant, gave a stirring talk before the crowd at the Memorial Day services. He began by quoting a line from John Donne's poem, "The Bell Tolls."

"But never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee."

"John Donne must have been writing about the church bells in France," the Mayor quoted. There the villages are far apart and as you drive along the rolling countryside you can tell when you are coming to a village, for you first see a church spire — the church being on the highest ground. In the village the church bell tolls at odd hours. . . perhaps the death of someone. The householder sends a servant to find out for whom the bell tolls.

"The bells of Carmel are happier bells. They ring and not toll. We hope that Carmel may be known as well as for the Cypress Tree as for the VILLAGE WHERE THE BELLS RING.

"About the French bells, John Donne wrote 'no man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent; . . . Any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind and, therefore, never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee.'

"Involved in Mankind?" the mayor went on. "Mankind is a generic term. What does mankind mean to the soldier, airman, sailor, marine? It means his hometown of Carmel and it means those closest to him in combat. . . shoulder to shoulder. . . those that have been shot at with him; gone hungry with him; been frozen with him. He builds a loyalty to them, and they to him. He can't let them down, and it is this loyalty that takes him on that journey beyond fear to do heroic things, both charted and uncharted.

"One week he is Pat Bein, or a Brayton Witherall, III, or a Captain DeAmaral, walking along Ocean Avenue on a sunny day, and another week. . . he can't let his buddies down, and becomes a hero. One of their deaths or injuries diminishes him and he never sends to know for whom the bell tolls. It tolls for him.

"The church bells toll for peace. But 'peace' can mean a lot of different things to a lot of different people.

"Is peace what Sun Tsu meant 2,000 years ago? A successful Chinese general, he wrote: 'When you are about to be beaten; sue for peace. Then while the enemy is resting, send spies into his area to find out what he is up to and what equipment he has. Meanwhile, build yourself up for the next onslaught.'

"This sounds like the peace of

Tree Vandalism In Carmel

Both the Carmel Police and members of the City Council in charge of tree preservation have received reports that vandals have defoliated one of two rare trees on Cassanova street between 8th and 9th in Carmel. The damage was discovered last Friday when the street was strewn with green leaves from the tree, known by tree experts as an Australian Flaming Tree. But the extent of the damage was considerably greater Monday. Apparently the vandals had again beaten it with a long stick from the sidewalk.

John Rennels City Treasurer

At a special meeting of the City Council Monday afternoon, the council members approved the appointment of John Rennels as city treasurer to fulfill the unexpired term of Frederick Duhring.

Rennels has been associated with Carmel Savings and Loan since he moved here 14 years ago from San Francisco where he had worked with the Home Loan Bank and audited the Savings and Loan Associations of California.

He and his wife Ruth have a son and a daughter, John, Jr. is a senior at Carmel High School and daughter Susan is a junior at UC at Santa Barbara.

the Korean Truce. . .

"Or is peace a stand off when each side is so strong that no one wants to take the first swing? This sounds like the cold war of today.

BLACK BARON STRIKES AGAIN

All males beware, especially those who are balding or graying, when walking in the vicinity of 5th and San Carlos.

If you are not careful, you might be the victim of the high spirited Starling who has made a game out of swooping down upon those who invade his domain, encompassing the entire intersection and half way down to the post office.

This bird (let's call him the "Black Baron" here for the sake of identification) stalks his prey only when they are: (1) male; (2) sporting gray hair; (3) sporting no hair at all; or (4) not looking his way.

The Black Baron is not a dumb bird by any means. If more than one person is walking in his district he remains on his perch high in a pine tree waiting for a more vulnerable prospect. But if a fellow ventures out alone, bald, gray or not, he is open for attack.

For instance. The shopkeepers snickered the day a man came from the post office with an arm load of mail and was assaulted. In a flash the Baron was about the man's head and in an attempt to ward off the offender, the mail went scattering into the air.

The notorious Baron strikes anywhere on the corner and even down 5th street toward the post office for half a block. His "followers" seem to think that the "Black Baron" is really "Mrs. Black Baron" with a nest nearby and is merely answering the call of the wild. Personally, I think it's just a mean old bird.

Carmel Music Society Concert Review

by John Upton

One of the most astounding phenomena of our accelerated culture is the emergence of so many young musicians who have attained concert status at an age when their teachers were still practicing scales.

This is certainly due, in part at least, to advances in the science of pedagogy; but perhaps a more decisive factor has been the increased communication among musicians and the widening of horizons made possible by the medium of recordings. While it may be argued that this can lead to slavish imitation of recognized performers, the fact that it does not was demonstrated by two talented stripplings Friday evening at Sunset auditorium.

In a "bonus" concert marking the end of its 40th season, the Carmel Music Society presented cellist Nathaniel Rosen and pianist Horacio Gutierrez, both of whom are 18 years old. Gutierrez, who was born in Havana and studied with Sergei Tarnowsky, is already a veteran of the concert stage. At the age of 11 he appeared with the Havana Symphony and has performed with the Los Angeles Philharmonic and the San Francisco Symphony. Young Rosen lives and studies in Los Angeles.

Rosen made us think at once of that other gifted young cellist, Janos Starker, as he launched into the opening Bach Suite for Unaccompanied Cello with a vigor and sonority that we have not heard since the veteran Bernard Greenhouse performed a similar work here earlier this year with the Bach Aria Group. This is exacting and difficult music for the cello, with its emphasis upon agility rather than beauty of sound, and Rosen made the most of it.

In three Impromptus by Ernst Toch, Rosen went on to show his nearly total control of his instrument. Toch's eloquent fantasies are as demanding, in their way, as Bach's straight-ahead statements. The ultimate effect was not as exacting, but that was Toch's fault, not Rosen's.

As soloist, Gutierrez showed his predilection for the romantic 19th century, with Mendelssohn's "Variations Serieuses" and Chopin's Waltz in A Minor and the B Minor Scherzo. The young Cuban performed these with perhaps more fire than tenderness (when it says "double forte" he PLAYS double forte), and evinced, I thought, a certain lack of sympathy with the emotional nuances set down by both composers; but there was an element of surprise in all this that was rather exciting. As I intimated above, Gutierrez cannot be accused of "slavish imitation;" indeed, one wonders if he has ever HEARD Arthur Rubinstein.

Playing with Rosen seemed to have a soothing effect on Gutierrez, so that he was a bit more gentle with Mendelssohn in the Sonata for Cello and Piano in D Major. Both musicians seemed self-assured and relaxed, and left us with a pleasant sense of affirmation. Friday night's audience was enthusiastic about this one.

The two young men also joined forces in Tchaikowsky's "Nocturne," where Rosen was able to give free rein to the romantic sweep and sonority that are inherent in his instrument. After the oriental opulence of the Tchaikowsky, with its tragic and almost delirious exaltation, David Popper's "Spinning Song" seemed rather thin. There was an exciting quality here, certainly; and yet with all its razzle-dazzle and fury it was somehow unsatisfying, like a Czerny exercise for two instruments.

Horacio Gutierrez and Nathaniel Rosen will surely go far in the musical world; already they have reached a degree of skill and scholarship not often attained even after a lifetime of dedication and hard work. It would be trite to observe that all they lack is maturity, for maturity too, has been accelerated in recent generations; and yet something is missing. Let us watch their progress in the years to come, and perhaps we may discover what that ingredient is.

In the meantime, good luck to them.

Tom Brown Associates Holds Photo Show

THE CARMEL PINE CONE-CYMBAL-JUNE 1, 1967 A

Tom Brown Insurance Associates, located between 5th and 6th on Dolores, has announced that a public showing of Brooke Elgie's most "moving and artistic photographs" will be held throughout the month of June during normal office hours.

Tom mentioned that many of Brooke's photos have been shown nationally and have been sent on tour around the country. He also said that these photographs will occupy wall space in every office of the Tom Brown Associates establishment.

Brooke Elgie is well known around the Peninsula for his amazing ability to extract only the best from his subjects. He merely understands the situation and photographs it.

"I consider children my best subject," Brooke said, "because I relate well with them." He commented that children show tremendous expression and they are seldom posed.

Much of Brooke's work is sold to advertising agencies who buy his photos to use in their campaigns. If you look around, you might find one of his children appearing in an ad, for Brooke uses them quite frequently as subjects. They are close around when he needs them and they "do what Dad tells them."

Brooke's first contact with the area came when he was at the Language School in 1957. He returned here in 1961 and went into his free lance business in 1963. He studied with Verner Berger of Germany as apprentice. Brooke mentioned that Berger is "one of the most outstanding photographers in Europe."

Be sure to drop by Tom Brown's and enjoy this special showing of Brooke Elgie's exciting photographs.

Brooke Elgie's photo at left just returned from a year's tour throughout the country sponsored by West Coast advertising agencies. This and many more photos by free lance photographer Brooke Elgie will be shown at Tom Brown's throughout the month of June.

A FORMULA FOR FREEDOM

by Dorothy Johnson

Call him an agricultural advisor. Call him a special consultant. Call him a public relations expert. Call him anything you like! Most people just call him "Joe"...

Born and raised on a farm near Follansbee, West Virginia, Joseph H. Boyd's dominating mission today is to motivate and inspire people to help themselves. His achievements have been considerable, especially in fostering rehabilitation work in areas where the need is urgent.

After his retirement from the Foreign Service of the United States Department of State in 1961, Joe and his wife, Elizabeth, moved to the Carmel Highlands from South Korea (Republic of Korea). During his five years of service there, he organized and developed an Agriculture Extension Service for that country. "We left a part of our hearts in Korea," said Mrs. Boyd. "They are such friendly, fun loving people." This view is entirely shared by Joe, who is still reaching his hands across the sea to give Koreans the benefit of his experience and know-how.

"What is Korea?" I asked. His friendly brown eyes lit up and he moved forward in his chair. I knew at once that I had found his "hot button."

"Korea—," he replied, "is a country about the size of Indiana, containing about twenty seven million crowded people." In 1953, uncounted thousands of refugee families, widows and orphans were roaming the streets. They were helpless—"a people without hope"—their homes nothing more than a smoking battlefield fought over one, two, three times by powerful armies. These are the people who fled North Korea to seek freedom in the South. These are the same people who fought and stopped the Communists, and who stand against them still.

Koreans pulled up grass and dug at the roots of trees for food. They sought out caves, or built makeshift hovels of canvas and rice bags, when canvas and rice bags could be found. They were barefoot and clothed in rags and thin tatters.

A crying infant was placed on the steps of an orphanage. He was suffering from malnutrition. Although desolate, his mother, swiping at the tears in her eyes, could do nothing about it. There were no coppers to spare. She was alone and homeless. She had no security.

Psychologists have correctly said that the deepest urge in human nature is the desire for security. It seems that the procedure toward resolving this universal need follows no set pattern. Security means different things to different people. To a man who is hungry, food would obviously be his first interest. To a man who is thirsty, he would seek a well to supply him with water. To a man who is without protection, clothing and shelter would be his concern. Nevertheless, given all these fundamental needs, man would finally desire to improve himself and to gain the approval and respect of others. At this point in our conversation, Mr. Boyd explained that security is not a condition. "It is a state of mind—a feeling of self-confidence—an awareness of our inner strengths."

Seeking to sketch something of the immense need for help in Korea, Joe told of the friendship and understanding between the United States and that country. "One of my greatest satisfactions," he said, "is that the Korean Agricultural Extension Service is still functioning as an effective organization for agricultural development."

Now associated with the American-Korean Foundation, a permanent organization founded in 1952, Joe, as its west coast representative, continually emphasizes the factor of self-help and the necessity for training in skills needed in their particular community. "The main load is, and should be, on the Koreans' shoulders," he said, "but they desperately need our assistance."

Joe referred to the AKF projects as "freedom in toto" for Korea, their goal being to "help Koreans help themselves." In a country where the average annual wage is only $85, this is indeed a tremendous undertaking. AKF depends entirely on the generosity and humanity of the American people. Nonprofit, nonpolitical and non sectarian, it works in harmony with other agencies, but does not duplicate their activities.

Unquestionably, today, there is a new air of self-confidence throughout Korea. Homes for the homeless are springing up. Jobs for the jobless are being created. Education for the illiterate has begun. The number of nurses and hospitals has increased. And, some of Korea's 62,000 or more orphans are being taken care of through a group adoption plan.

A courageous and determined people, whose force lies in their plasticity, the Koreans do not resist change. They adapt themselves. "Endowed with a fierce pride," Joe added, "they strive to do their best with the tools at hand." He waved his arms, pointing toward me with a pencil. "Frankly, more tools are needed! Help must be forthcoming—if we are to break the old cycle of debt and hunger that has existed for centuries."

Several times our interview was interrupted by the telephone, the last call having something to do about a shipload of livestock and materials to be distributed and allocated to 4-H clubs in Korea. Although somewhat apologetic to me, Joe accepted these calls with enthusiasm; and we had no difficulty picking up where we had left off on his return.

"About the 4-H program?" He smiled, continuing easily. "Well, let's take pigs, for example. A pig is a prized possession! Instead of giving it away, we lend a pig to them; but they, in return, must give back two pigs from the first litter." Sale of litters has been known to raise a family's annual income from $70, to $450. This is called the 4-H Livestock Bank, which started with a capital stock of 660 pigs.

"Each sow has two litters a year, about eight pigs per litter," Joe told me. "I don't know exactly how many pigs they would have at the end of a year," he laughed. No matter how you figure it, that's a lot of pigs!

Early in 1967, there were approximately 6000 pigs out on loan to new 4-H clubs who are assisted by the AKF, but once established, operate officially under the Korean government. "A recent report," says Joe, "indicates that the Koreans have exported about five million dollars worth of pigs to Hongkong, Taiwan, and Japan."

Joe made it plain that it is his firm conviction that with American support and Korean youths leading the way through their 4-H clubs, now some 650 strong and second only to the United States—that the American-Korean Foundation has and will continue to raise the sights and ambitions of all Koreans through self-help. "In the final analysis," he said, "it's really the only qualifying agent for freedom."

The Boyds have two daughters; Mrs. Harry La Tourette, whose husband is an attorney in Texas; and the other, Mrs. Ronald Young is in Florida, where her husband is a computer analyst for Pratt & Whitney.

Although their favorite abode is Carmel, Joe and Elizabeth enjoy visiting with their children. They are frequently coming-and-going. The afternoon I was there, early in April, they were planning to take-off again—this time for a holiday in their beloved Hawaii, where they lived for nearly seven years.

Joe is a tireless worker and Elizabeth, full of vim and vigor, does full justice to him as such. A long-time member of the P.E.O. Sisterhood, she also does volunteer work for the Monterey County Symphony Association, being a member of its board and never missing their monthly meeting at the Mark Thomas Inn.

On the whole, the Boyds, spend most of their time in a lovely home perched high on a hill where a long deck and Joe's study affords a view that stretches from Pt. Lobos across the Carmel Bay to Pebble Beach. Joe and Elizabeth Boyd have every reason to be contented—and they are! "In 1960, seeing retirement just around the corner," Joe concluded, "Elizabeth returned to the states, and chose this spot for us to live. She did a good job—"

Art Show At Horse Show

A young people's Art Show is planned in connection with the 1967 Monterey Arabian Horse Show at the Monterey County Fairgrounds July 8th and 9th, it was announced by Dr. Stephen Thorngate of Monterey, President of the Monterey County American Cancer Society, for which the annual horse show is a benefit.

"So many of our County young people express their desire to help the Society each year and there is so much talent among our youngsters that this event should be a great success. Also it will give the many out of town and out of state exhibitors and spectators a chance to see what real ability youngsters have when given encouragement," Dr. Thorngate said.

Dr. Wesley Hoskins of Watsonville, Horse Show Committee chairman, is most enthusiastic. "It's a great idea and will be an added attraction as it fits in with the family showing for which Arabian horse owners are noted."

Alex Gonzales, well known Peninsula artist and instructor at Monterey Peninsula College, is art advisor to the show committee.

The show is open to all boys and girls of Monterey County, aged 6 to 14, and all entries must be within "The Arabian Nights" theme of this year's horse show,

From A Librarian's Notebook

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg, City Librarian

THE DIARY OF A MAD HOUSEWIFE is a novel by Sue Kaufman, who has two other books to her credit, neither of which awakened any memory response in this librarian. This one is interesting. It is written in the first person and is the story of a New York housewife who has decided that she is going crazy and that keeping a diary will act as a therapeutic agent. She has all the symptoms, the tic in the left eye, the lump in the throat, the sudden perspiration, the tremblings, the panics, the fears. This is an every day sort of novel. You have probably known it's characters many times. You will probably enjoy the book.

Playboy Magazine did a series of interviews with famous people and the results have been gathered into a book. Each interview is as it happened, questions and answers. Each is preceded by a photograph of the subject. Included among the interviewees are Melvin Belli, Frank Sinatra, Richard Burton, Martin Luther King, Ayn Rand, and many others. The title of the book is PLAYBOY INTERVIEWS.

A true story stranger than fiction is A MAN CALLED LUCY by Pierre Accoce. Rudolph Roesler, code name Lucy, was the great spy of the second World War. Of him it is said "Lucy held in his hands the threads that led to the three high commands of the German forces. . . . The effect of his communications on the strategy of the Red Army and on the defeat of the Wehrmacht was incalculable." This is the story of this least known but most effective spy of the war. A MAN CALLED LUCY died in 1958 and is buried in Switzerland.

THE SEA AND THE STARS is Robert Wilder's tale of three generations of the Lathrop family of Florida. It is especially the story of Tod Lathrop, the third generation Lathrop, and his career in helping the state become what it is today. With a long string of books to his credit, Robert Wilder has lost none of his skill and talent. The book looks huge, but has only a few more pages than the customary novel. Heavy books seem to be the rule these days. The publishing house which can afford good thin paper may make a fortune some day. May it come speedily ! ! ! !

Jerome Weidman's new book is called OTHER PEOPLES MONEY. Weidman's first novel entitled I CAN GET IT FOR YOU WHOLESALE was not only a successful book but it made an equally successful play. This book is the story of young Victor Smith during the years between the sinking of the Lusitania and the end of World War II. It has much to do with the problems of being Jewish in a predominately Gentile world. Well written and worth while.

One final novel for this week can only be the new Georges Simenon THE OLD MAN DIED. This is not a mystery, and Simenon has many fine books to his credit which are not mysteries. This one is the sad story of the death of an old man and the squabbles his children had

Mary Faulkner and Christine Capen Win Honors

The Carmel High School French department took top honors on May 19th at the Award ceremony of the Alliance Francaise of the Monterey Peninsula when Henri Monteagle, Cultural Attache of France in San Francisco, presented two scholarships for a full summer session of French studies at the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies.

Mary Faulkner and Christine Capen received the full scholarships after competitive examinations which were given and supervised by a committee comprised of Marion Stevens, John Dowdakin, Professor Michel Joyet and Francois Vanderwal.

over his small fortune. As happens so often, there was much less money than they had expected, a situation which can lead to less brotherly love, much less brotherly love.

We will have a good list of new books this week, posted on the bulletin board as usual. You check the list and you take your choice. The following is a scholarly limerick I just made up.

There was a small town named Carmel,
Where summer fog lasted a spell.
But with a good book,
No one gave fog a look,
And everyone got along swell.
In full retreat,
Ruth Galvin Thornburg,
Librarian.

The Complete Gardener

. . . a regular diet of information having to do with plants

It was Ralph Waldo Emerson who wrote, among other things, "A weed is a plant whose virtues have not yet been discovered." And then there is the lady who writes in to tell us that everything she plants dies. As a matter of fact, she says, "when they hand me Green Stamps, they turn brown."

An infestation of weeds can be traced, usually, to three factors: low fertility, high acidity, and soil compaction. Proper feeding is considered the best control. Every cubic foot of topsoil contains thousands of weed seeds. Most of these never germinate. Those that do can pose problems which might require several kinds of control. From the standpoint of physical exercise there's nothing quite like wading in among them and having at it with both hands. But some folks take a dim view of this primitive practice. So we have tools, such as hoes and cultivators. Even that, sometimes, has a tendency to stretch too many muscles. So we have herbicides, those chemicals which can be applied to the weeds themselves or to the soil in which their seeds repose. This, it appears, is now the most popular method of control.

Right now is the best time to apply herbicides, while the weeds are growing vigorously. If you're concerned with broadleaf weeds in a grass lawn be sure that the fertility level is high in the soil before you apply the weed killer. Stimulating the grass will give it that necessary push while the herbicide is doing its job. If you want to keep your clover postpone the treatment until summer, when clover is most resistant and when dandelions, incidentally, are most susceptible to weed killers. Chickweed and henbit are cool-season growers and should be treated before the weather gets hot.

If your flower beds are freshly weeded, and the plants have been established for a week, a granular material (eptam) can be mixed

REPORTS FROM RLS

By Chandler Meloy

Cum Laude Society Honors Thirteen

In the fourth annual Cum Laude Society initiation, the Stevenson School Chapter took in 13 new members, including two faculty, at a special Vespers program last Sunday.

The Society, formed in 1906 in the "image" of Phi Beta Kappa, to honor outstanding secondary school students, has some 280 chapters in the United States, but only seven in California. Stevenson was admitted in 1963, unprecedented for a ten year old school. This is one more testament to the unique academic standing of the school.

Keynoting the program was guest speaker, John Howell Phillips, Jr., Director of the Hopkins Marine Station in Pacific Grove.

Stanford University Research project. Dr. Phillips warned that fanaticism and hearsay evidence can warp the judgement of intelligent people, and he admonished and encouraged his young audience to "think then speak" on issues.

Frank Keith, assistant headmaster, was chairman of the program, while founding Director and school President, Robert U. Ricklefs, gave the welcome and oath of office to the new members. Students speaking included Steve Barlow and Terry Talbot. New members from the senior class are: Taylor R. Grant, Edward R. Jagels, Michael R. Popovich, Kim Chu Wang, Christopher Wentworth, William Winton and Patrick Wu. Four Juniors were accepted to the Society, John Allen Cann, Robert S. Howard, William V. Kondrat, III, and Timothy Talbot.

The two distinguished faculty members added to the academic fraternity were Charles T. Dilla-way and Jerome D. Fenton of the English Department.

Baseball: In one of the great Stevenson sport stories, the baseball team ended the season with a 9-3 record, a second place in the C.A.A., a fourth place in the baseball tournament, and four players, highest among all league members, placed on the All-League first team.

Head Coach and Athletic Director Dick Zury, who also had his first winning basketball season this year, was lauded by both team members and Headmaster Ricklefs for the outstanding season. Mr. Ricklefs, who played college and semi-pro baseball, and has pitched some great Father and Son victories in past years, was delighted at the "best" season in R.L.S. baseball play.

Honored team members included All-League pitcher Pat Rauber (6-1). Pat, who not only sparked the team as Captain, but could wallop the ball when needed, was all-league SHORT-STOP last year. He also won the E.R.A. trophy for the 1967 season. John Cann, hard hitting second baseman, and home run hitting Eric Haas in the outfield, plus Mike Greene (.487) at short-stop, completed the top four "horseholders." Mike also stole bases like Maury Wills, averaging three per game.

Only three seniors will be lost to the team this year with three of the four all-league players returning (Rauber graduates). So baseball "buffs" can really say "wait until next year." Also, there are hopes that the weather next year will not cause 15 postponements, which in turn caused the team to play 9 games in 10 days, a goodly number even for the pros.

Writing: The prose and Poetry Contest of the Monterey Women's International League for Peace and Freedom had three winners and two runner-ups from R.L.S. this past week. Junior Division winners were Mark Kaminski second and Arlen Chase third, with Allen Oliniger runner-up. The Senior Division saw Larry Kuechler take a second with Tim Talbot a runner-up. Prizes from $10 to $25 were awarded the winners.

Father and Son Banquet: Football "Hall-of-Famer" Jordan Oliver, head coach of Yale University for 11 years, was a dynamic "key-note" speaker at the annual Father and Son Banquet. Oliver, who also coached at Villanova and Loyola in 25 years of football, was named Coach of the Year in 1960 after his Yale team had their first untied—undefeated season in 37 years. (Local note: The oldest living ex-captain of any Yale team is Samuel F. B. Morse. Mr. Morse and Coach Oliver had a brief visit earlier in the day to talk football.)

Introduced by Headmaster Robert Ricklefs, who welcomed the guests and joked with the fathers about their "active" sport day, Oliver gave the message: "When the chips are down, and you're on the playing field of life you can't turn to the coach for help — it's all up to you to produce".

Athletic Director Dick Zury, who was master of ceremonies for the awards, received a surprise gift from his baseball players. Some 23 teams were given awards (Varsity, JV and Lightweight) at the ceremony. The Mothers also had a program of their own, hosted by Sponsors Club President Mrs. Tom Hudson.

Fund Raising Drive By Fire Department

Occasionally the members of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Volunteer Fire Department are forced to appeal to the citizens of Carmel and our other friends for operating funds.

Our last appeal was in June of 1961. The response at that time was very generous, and the amount received has enabled us to operate our Volunteer Group since then. Now, however, our treasury has been depleted to the point where, in order to continue our organizational activities, we must again ask our friends for help.

Your Volunteer Fire Department consists of 26 men, who donate approximately 19 hours each month per man to the citizens of Carmel. Through extensive training and the comprehensive fire prevention program undertaken by them, fire insurance rates inside the City of Carmel are lower than in many cities with full paid fire departments. Some nearby areas, similar in structure to Carmel, pay twice as much for fire insurance.

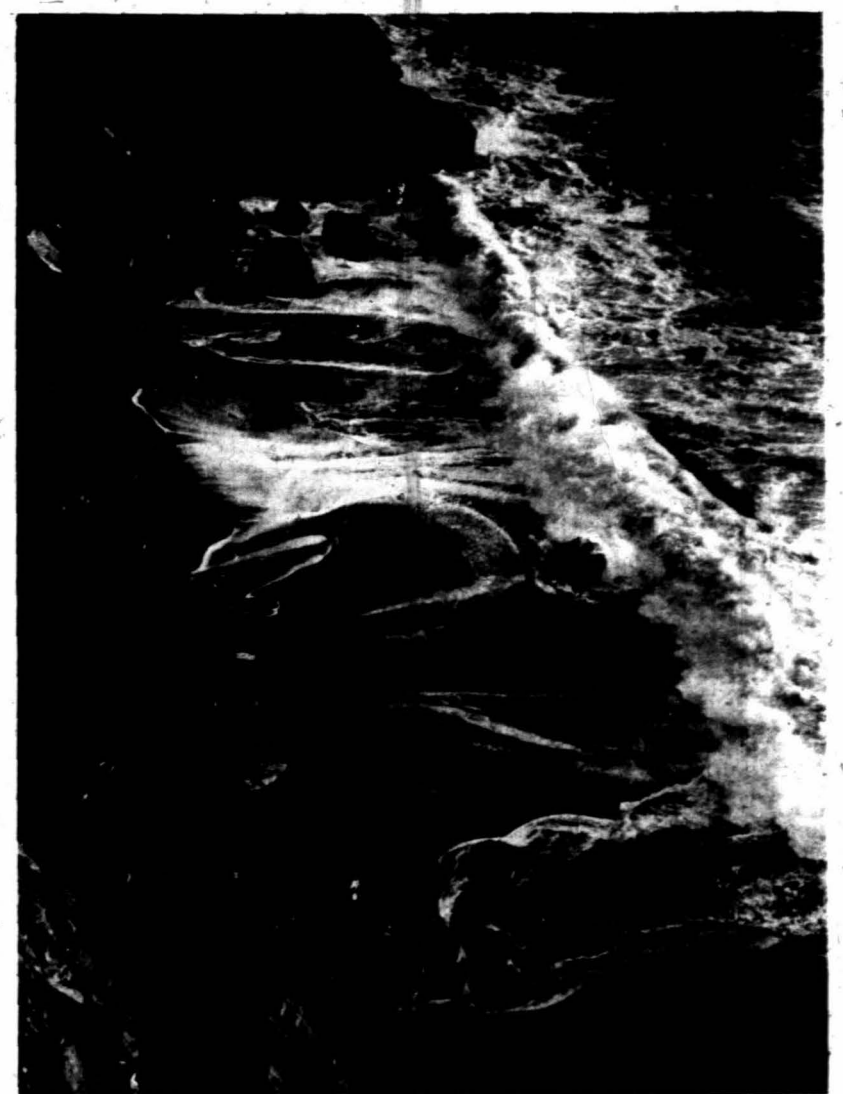

During the year ending December 1966, the Fire Department answered 272 calls for assistance in combating fires. Some $2,118,657.00 in property value was involved; yet through prompt work of the Volunteers, the fire loss was less than $48,510.00.

In addition, the Volunteers donate their services to the emergency Red Cross Ambulance, which is available to you free of charge. This service was utilized 314 times during the year of 1966 by the citizens of Carmel and adjacent areas.

We stand by to assist you any time you are in trouble. We should like to think that we can count on our friends to help us continue our activities. May be count on you?

ADVERTISE

In The Pine Cone
it is good business

A special exhibition of photographs by the well-known Carmel photographer, Steve Crouch, is currently on view at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History. These are interpretive pictures reflecting the mood of the photographer in scenes remembered along the Big Sur Coast, the High Sierras, and the Olympic Peninsula.

The exhibition may be viewed from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Monday and will be at the Museum through June 30th.

is desirous of a suitable memorial for those of all conflicts since World War II — Greece, Lebanon, Korea, the Dominican Republic, and who knows, perhaps the Middle East.

"Or is this peace the peace within us; the peace of God which passeth all understanding? Of this peace, love has a part. You must be a friend to yourself, face yourself as you really are, in order to be a friend to others.

"We talk about the distance to the Moon, or to Mars, but the greatest distance we have to worry about is the distance within ourselves.

"And so the flag flies at half mast, and the bells toll for peace, but never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee!"

Deadline For GI Home Loans

The cutoff date for the World War II GI Home Loan program is July 25, 1967, said Glenn Corbitt, Manager of VA's Northern California Regional Office.

That date is the absolute deadline for applications for VA guaranteed or insured G.I. Home Loans for veterans of World War II.

Veterans of the Korean Conflict and for the Viet-Nam era veterans are not affected by the WW II cutoff date. For Korean Conflict veterans, the absolute deadline is January 31, 1975.

For post-Korean Conflict veterans the loan deadline formula is the same as the one for previous programs; 10 years after the date of discharge, plus one year for each three months active duty, but not in excess of 20 years from date of last discharge.

Vision Problems In Children

The problem of correcting vision disorders in the young is that the victims usually do not know they have vision inadequacies. They generally can compensate for the gradual deterioration of their visual process.

Governor Reagan during Save Your Vision Week this year said, "Many of our children needlessly suffer social and academic hardships because they have neglected or undetected vision problems."

The Carmel Fire Department, thus far, has received 12 applications from girls for Miss Carmel Fire Department Queen of 1967 to be held on July 15. The Carmel Fire Department urges all girls 18 years old or older to pick up an application at the Carmel Fire Department Monday through Saturday from 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

The shopkeepers of the Carmel Business Association have wholeheartedly donated gift certificates and gifts for the Queen and her Court.

Reagan Dinner To Be Held

Governor Ronald Reagan has announced that Mrs. Reagan will accompany him when he attends "An evening with the Governor" dinner to be held in his honor on June 10. The Governor and his party will arrive around 6:30 p.m. to attend the $100 buffet dinner at Corral de Tierra Country Club.

Although he will give a short address at approximately 9:00 p.m. the Governor said it is his main intention to provide guests with an opportunity to discuss their view points with him and other legislators present.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin J. Ferrera Hold Family Reunion

A family reunion was given by Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Ferrera of Carmel for his brothers and sisters on May 13 at the Carmel Highland Inn. Included in the gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jacobs of Oakland, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Oliver of San Jose, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ferrera of San Jose, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Santana of San Jose, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Raburn Jr. of San Jose, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bodine of San Jose, Mrs. Jean Tice of San Francisco and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawrence of Santa Cruz.

The Ferrera's were also treated with a visit from their daughter Mrs. James West of Arlington Heights, Ill. when she flew out from Chicago to lecture at the San Francisco College of Mortuary Science and spent Mothers Day with her family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferrera hope that the family reunions will be held twice a year so that everyone will keep up with the family events.

Abalones To Leave The State

A bill which allows the sale of abalone outside the state taken in California waters has passed the Senate with an amendment providing for review of the law in two years, and will go to the Assembly for their consideration, State Senator Donald L. Grunsky (R-Central Coast Counties), the author of the legislation announced.

The amendment limited the life of the legislation to two years, which will allow the Legislature to consider the effect of the law on the availability of the choice

California red abalone to Californians at its expiration date.

The two year limit was introduced at the request of the restaurant industry which was concerned with the supply of the red abalone.

"The red abalone is a superior quality steak," Grunsky said, "and we will be certain that sale outside the state will not mean that Californians will no longer be able to enjoy it. I predict there will be no problem in having the law become permanent when it is reconsidered in two years."
